

Very Rev. John J. Lardner, P.S.S., Papers

Biographical Note:

Rev. John Joseph Lardner (1893-1948) was the eldest of eight surviving children born to Irish immigrant parents, John Lardner and Catherine Cyran Lardner. He was raised in Baltimore, Maryland, and educated at Loyola College, St. Mary's Seminary, and the Sulpician Seminary of Washington, D.C., where he entered the Society of St. Sulpice and was ordained to the priesthood in 1920. He earned his licentiate in Theology from Catholic University of America in 1921 before making his Solitude, 1921-1922. After brief assignments at the Sulpician seminaries in Washington, D.C., and Baltimore, he was sent to Rome to earn his doctorate in theology at the Angelicum. He returned to the United States in 1927 and was assigned to the faculty of St. Mary's Seminary, where taught philosophy and theology until his appointment as rector at St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, California, in 1930, where he remained for the next four years. He was recalled to Baltimore in 1934, where in addition to his teaching duties, he served as Vice-President and rector, a position he held until his appointment as acting provincial in 1943. (Disruptions caused by the Second World War would delay his official appointment until 1945.)

During his term as provincial, Rev. Lardner negotiated agreements with the Archdioceses of Honolulu and Detroit to staff new seminaries: St. Stephen's Minor Seminary (1946-1970) in Kaneohe, Hawaii, and St. John's Provincial Seminary (1949-1988) in Plymouth, Michigan, a major seminary to serve the dioceses that comprised the Province of the Archdiocese of Detroit. Despite failing health, Rev. Lardner undertook a visitation of Sulpician houses in the western part of the country in the fall of 1948. It was during his stay at St. Edward's Seminary in Kenmore, Washington, that he suffered a fatal heart attack.

This collection contains both official and personal papers, including correspondence, subject files, homilies, and materials regarding the seminary course of studies. Languages used in the collection include English, French, and Latin.

Abbreviation keys can be found on the last page of the collection box list and correspondence indices.
