

In God We Trust: THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN FAITH AND FAMILY TODAY

Brad Wilcox gives the annual Carroll Lecture at St. Mary's

THURSDAY
MARCH 21
2024

7:00 pm | Laubacher Hall at St. Mary's Seminary & University

Brad Wilcox is Professor of Sociology and Director of the National Marriage Project at the University of Virginia, the Future of Freedom Fellow at the Institute for Family Studies, and a nonresident senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute. The author of Get Married: Why Americans Should Defy the Elites, Forge Strong Families and Save Civilization (Harper Collins, 2024), Wilcox studies marital quality, marital stability, and the impact of strong and stable marriages upon men, women, and children.

The author and editor of six books, Wilcox has written for scientific journals such as The American Sociological Review, The Journal of Marriage and Family, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Atlantic, and National Review. A Connecticut native, he now lives in Charlottesville, Virginia with his wife and family.

This event is free and open to the public, but registration is requested.

Register at: <https://CarrollLecture2024.eventbrite.com>

In Get Married: Why Americans Must Defy the Elites, Forge Strong Families, and Save Civilization University of Virginia sociologist Brad Wilcox explains how our ruling class publicly disparages marriage—the institution most likely to deliver prosperity and happiness to ordinary Americans—while privately embracing it.

This book will be available for purchase. Dr. Wilcox will sign copies.

St. Mary's was founded in 1791; it is the first Roman Catholic seminary in the United States. At the invitation of Bishop John Carroll, it was established by Priests of the Society of Saint Sulpice (the Sulpicians) who run the institution to this day. The seminary was originally located on Paca Street in downtown Baltimore. In 1929 St. Mary's built a new home in the Roland Park neighborhood.

5400 Roland Avenue
Baltimore, MD 21210-1994
410-864-4000
stmarys.edu